The Book Thief by Markus Zusak

For this MARC record, most of the required information was found on the copyright page, including the summary. The price was imprinted on the back cover. Once I consolidated the assignment instructions, module 3 explanation, and the information in our Kaplan textbook, I discovered it might be easiest to create a template of fields in MARC Magician.

I needed to Google for the authors birth date information and used Scholastic's Markus Zusak Biography page. For the Dewey number, I used the Carroll County OPAC. I also needed to question on blackboard how to handle the multiple publishers. For the 658 field, I used the online MCPS curriculum archive. For the awards field, I used the Novelist database available through the Montgomery County Public library. I measured this book with my ruler.

The Zombie Survival Guide by Max Brooks

For this and the following six print book MARC records, I used the template I had created in MARC Magician based on the assignment guidelines. Again, a lot of information was taken directly from the recto/verso pages and the barcode on the back cover.

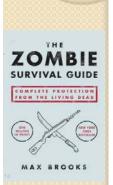

I found the author's birthdate by looking at his mother, Anne Bancroft & father, Mel Brooks, biographies — I could not find a credible bio on Max that included birthdate. There was no summary on this title page and I could not find one in the LOC catalog, either, so I used Novelist's. The awards and lists come from NoveList. This is a high-interest book, but without curricular connections. Again, I had to measure with my ruler.

Americapedia: Taking the Dumb out of Freedom by Jodi Lynn Anderson, Daniel Ehrenhaft and Andisheh Nouraee

The only information that I could not get off the recto/verso pages was a summary, and again the Library of Congress did not list one, so I used the NoveList summary. There are no awards. Once again, size comes from my ruler. The curriculum connections are to the MCPS curriculum.

Levithian by Scott Westerfeld

I used Google to find a biography for Westerfeld's birthdate & I became very distracted by his website, his sardonic wit shines through. I think he'd intimidate me in person. I had to measure with my ruler. For field 440v I choose to format as Book One, and would keep that consistent through my library – series order is important to students (and me as a reader). I added Steampunk to the 650 subject field because I know how popular that subgenre is with my population. The major awards & book lists that I choose to include from NoveList, when there are many, are the ones learned about and used in my SLM504 course, Young Adult Lit.

Diary of a Wimpy Kid: Cabin Fever by Jeff Kinney

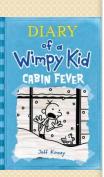

I went to Kinney's website for his birth date. I choose to include "written and illustrated by" in field 245c for students to know that the illustrator is the same person as the author, and is not simply missing. There is no edition information available. As directed by the copyright page, I went to loc.gov for the CIP data. The subject heading "humor for guys" is from NoveList. For consistency with Leviathan and other series books, in field 440v, I put "Book six."

Creating this was very straightforward from the information found on the recto/verso. There is no edition information, and the title takes the place of a summary.

Phenomena by Henry & Melissa Billings

This was the most interesting, to accomplish, it was a textbook that I had at home from school that I want to use next year – it is not my class text, rather a supplemental professional resource our media center. I'm sure I will have to catalog stuff like this – it may actually be one of the few I need to catalog on my own.

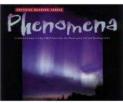

I had to go to World Cat for help figuring out Dewey – it is not in the LOC catalog. Could not find a credible author biography online for their birthdates. The MARC Magician tips say that "if width is greater than height" to list both. I wrote the summary, with the staff as intended audience and the subject headings are from World Cat.

Chicka, Chicka 1-2-3 by Bill Martin, Jr; Michael Sampson and Lois Ehlert.

Having three novels, three nonfiction, and a textbook, I purposely attempted a MARC record for a picture book format. Most of the necessary fields were on the recto/verso, I did need to count the pages — I was surprised that I didn't find 32. For the birth dates I went to the authors & illustrator biography pages. Michael Sampson and Bill Martin, Jr share a website. Michael Sampson does not list his birth date. This is also where I retrieved the longer/alternate name for Bill Martin, Jr.

"Author of the Month – Lois Ehlert." McGrawHill Higher Education. N.p., n.d. Web. 8 July 2012. http://www.mhhe.com/socscience/education/kidlit/aom/janaom.html.

Martin, Bill Jr., and Michael Sampson. Chicka Chicka 123. Lois Ehlert, Illus. New York, NY: Simon & Schuster BFYR, 2004. Print.

I used the motion picture template in MARC Magician. I went to the official website for the information that my eyes were too old to read, but once I had taken the pictures for this project, I was able to make the back cover legible. I wrote the summary by taking out the subjective language in the summary on the official website, and the subject headings are based on NoveList's entry for the novel that this movie is based on.
